

Amongst the Foremost Nations

There are many advantages to being a small country. It is, for example, much easier to bring about change swiftly in a small society and lead it onto a course we desire. We can reach incredibly far by 2015 – if we have the will and if we choose to do so. This requires us to broaden some bounds - first and foremost those of our own minds.

Vision 2015 contributes to widening these bounds, so we may establish a sound economy as well as a knowledge society, which promotes creativity and ensures the welfare of all citizens.

The Faroes are an oasis abundant in resources – human as well as natural. Globalization generates countless new possibilities for us to seize, if we harness its vast challenges as a driving force rather than letting them hold us back. The keywords are creativity, knowledge and will.

I hereby thank the strategy groups and all those whom have put great energy into working with Vision 2015.

Together we shall reach our goal. Our course is set for the foremost nations.
